Priests simply looked after cults; they did not constitute a clergy, and there were no sacred books. The sole requirements for the Greeks were to believe that the gods existed and to perform ritual and sacrifice, through which the gods received their due. To deny the existence of a deity was to risk reprisals, from the deity or from other mortals.

~~Ancient Greek religion - Wikipedia~~

The ancient Greeks believed in a complex system of gods, goddesses, deities and heroes. This complexity extended to their view of the afterlife. With short lifespans and death a common occurrence, the ancient Greeks were very concerned not only with the act of dying, but funerary preparations, burial practices and their trip to the
