Girl with Curious Hair on Apple Books

Being that “Lyndon” of Girl With Curious Hair is the first piece of narrative fiction we’ve read in Wallace’s canon, I have to admit that I dove into the piece under the pretense that it would somehow fall short of his other essays. After all, didn’t Dr. Houser describe some people as “running the other way” when it comes to Wallace’s fiction?

Wallace follows his debut novel (The Broom of the System, 1986) with this collection of nine stories and a John Barthian novella. The best of the pieces, often drawn from the media or topical events, are inventive, entertaining, and inspired, while others—including the novella—can be all too glib and mannered. "Little Expressionless Animals" (which received the 1988 John Train Humor Prize ...
