The Doctrine Of God John

Frame's Doctrine of God is a comprehensive overview of theology proper. He is copious in Scripture quotations, so in that way it serves as an excellent reference work on various aspects of the doctrine. He is less philosophical than the similar work by John Feinsein and is, therefore, an easier read in many ways.

1. God is not bound by any physical existence - He does not possess a body 2. Every reference to physical attributes is an anthropomorphism a. No one has ever seen God John 1:18 - "No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him." b.

"John Frame's Doctrine of the Word of God is, by his own reckoning, his magnum opus, and I wholeheartedly agree. It is a rare event when evangelical theologians publish primary rather than secondary texts, but Frame has done it with this work, a constructive proposal that is as creative as it is conservative, "something close to biblicism" concerning the Bible itself.

A masterful treatment of The Doctrine of God! Offering a cogent defense of the theology of lordship, John Frame provides fresh insight on transcendence and immanence, human responsibility and freedom, evil and God's agency, God and gender, theophany and incarnation, and other issues, all in light of the Trinity.

A Summary of the Doctrine of God - Christopher L. Scott

Sin is entering into competition with God for authority. John says that sin is the transgression of the law of God, and the law of God is His word on any and every subject. Sin is setting God's word aside as the law of my life, and doing what I please. After the fatal step had been taken by Adam and Eve,...

The Gospel - doctrine.org

The one God is not divisible into parts – Since God is spirit by nature and not material in composition, He cannot be divided into 3 parts of 1/3 God each. God the Father, God the Son or God the Holy Spirit therefore cannot be conceived of any anything less than wholly God in essence.

Doctrine of God, The (A Theology of Lordship) Kindle Edition

I've loved John Frame since I read his Doctrine of God. Frame's central thesis in this volume is that "God's word, in all its qualities and aspects, is a personal communication from him to us" (3). Since God is the covenant Lord of all creation, his word possesses what Frame calls his Lordship attributes: control, authority, and presence.

14 Now after John had been taken into custody, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of God, 15 and saying, "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent and believe in the gospel" (Mark 1.14-15).

The Doctrine of God

The doctrine of the Unity of God does not exclude the idea of a plurality of persons in the Godhead. Not that there are three persons in each person of the Godhead, if we use in both cases the term person in one and the same sense. We believe, therefore, that there are three persons in the Godhead, but one God.
