The Piper's Son is a little more grown-up, and in this book, Melina Marchetta moves more firmly into young adult territory. I was crying before I got to the end of chapter one, right through to the end, and I loved every minute of it.

Without a shadow of a doubt, The Piper's Son is my favourite Melina Marchetta book so far. It had this rawness about it that could touch you so deep, it was achy, and was full of so much heartfelt emotion seriously my feelings were all over the place with this book.
